These instructions assume the user has basic computer skills. Basic HTML and Flash skills are a plus but are not necessary to follow these instructions. All editing is done in the "Data.txt" file.

Note: All variables start with the '&' symbol. You can erase the default / garbage text inserted into the template for demo purposes.

1. Back-up
 - Before any changes are made to the template, the entire directory should be duplicated.

- This step is easy to overlook but will be important if a mistake is made will editing the template.
- 2. Viewing the template after making changes
 - Double click - "index.html" contained in the directory named after the template.
 - All variable changes will be reflected in the movie once the data file has been changed and saved.
- 3. To insert your company name
 - Change the "&header" variable to equal your company name. Example: change the company name to "mayvik.com", the code should read "&header=mayvik.com". This will also be reflected after the copyright in the footer of the template.
- 4. To change the link names
 - Change the content following the "&link#" with the content you want to be displayed. example: change link#1 to "Home", the code should read "&link#1=Home"
 - Note: The link number and body numbers should be the same.
- 5. To change the content for a link
 - Change the content following the "&body1" with the content you want to be displayed. example: change body1 to "This is the content for link1", the code should read "&body1=This is the content for link1"
 - Note: The link number and body numbers should be the same.
- 6. Once the changes are finalized
 - Save the "Data.txt" file with your changes. DO NOT change this file name or your template will not work.
 - Maintain the file structure and upload all of the documents to root of your file server
 - If this template is being used for desktop purposes or CD's or DVD's. The only requirement is to maintain the file structure
